

RISE Professional Development Forum, October 22 and 23, 2009
Appleton, Paper Valley Hotel

Wednesday, October 22nd Reception

Thursday, October 23rd Forum

The professional development meeting will center on concurrent tracks on two topics – industry engagement and curriculum chunking –key elements of developing career pathways. These tracks will be interactive sessions enabling participants to learn from national experts with time to break into small groups to investigate specific topics.

- Julian Alssid and Melissa Goldberg from the Workforce Strategy Center (<http://www.workforcestrategy.org/ourmodel.php>) will be on hand to lead the session on industry engagement. This track will be specifically designed for the benefit of multi-agency, cross-functional regional teams and will include working with the Center's gap analysis software. Partnerships applying for RISE Industry Engagement grants should plan to send a team if their proposal is selected for funding. Teams should bring a laptop for this exercise.
- Dr. Kate Dins, Dean, Arts and Professions Division at Portland Community College (<http://www.pcc.edu/career/pathways/other-pathways.html>) and a veteran of Oregon's career pathway efforts, will lead the session on chunking curricula. This track will benefit educational leaders who want a comprehensive conceptual overview of chunking curricula and insights into student, institutional, and external issues that need to be addressed along the way. Teams representing RISE curriculum development grants and other technical colleges wanting to work on career pathways should attend this track.

For both tracks, we strongly encourage teams representing institutions or regional partnerships to attend to build capacity for career pathway development.
